Oklahoma Legislature Called Into Extra Session

SEVEN SOLON DENY KLAN 'FAVORITISM'

Law Is Advocated For Prohibiting Wearing Masks In Public

RECORD GROWTH ENJOYED BY KLAN

Grand Dragon Insists Order Will Not Fight Back At Present

(Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 20—An extraordinary session of the Oklahoma legislature, called to assembly next Wednesday is a "Klan legislature," a committee of seven state representatives issued a statement today, in which they declared that they advocated "a law prohibiting the wearing of masks of masked assemblies and severe penalties for any flogging or mob violence of any kind."

A signed statement that Governor J. C. Walton had made the Ku Klux Klan a page on which a political bankrupt has hung the tattered habiliments of a grotesque figure while making his last frantic bid for public favor, was issued today to the Associated Press here by N. J. Jewett, grand dragon of the Klan in Oklahoma.

Mr. Jewett declared "that despite the insidious insult to Klansmen in the offer of protection if they would withdraw from the order we have been enjoying a record-breaking growth in membership in the past few days."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 20—Events in Oklahoma moved today toward a showdown between Governor J. C. Walton and members of the state legislature over the executive exercise of authority and his war on the Ku Klux Klan and mob floggers.

A call for an extraordinary session of the lower house to consider a series of charges that Governor Walton has taken unto himself the powers of a despot and has supplanted constitutional government with a dictatorship was issued early this morning.

The call was made public by W. B. McBea, representative from Stevens county, it bore the names of 45 house members with a promise that during the day the list would grow to 54 constituting a majority of the house.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 20—Governor Parker has made public contents of resolutions adopted by a mass meeting of citizens of Jackson parish and forwarded to him by a resolution committee, charging "a super government has been established in Jackson parish" to the extent of "disrupting the judiciary and the machinery of the court in such ways to punish innocent persons while guilty ones go free" and practically disfranchising the voters who are not in sympathy with the Ku Klux Klan.

The resolutions are signed by W. D. Jeffries, A. M. Colvin and R. L. Hardy as a committee appointed by the mass meeting to appeal to the Governor for relief.

Governor Parker has not yet announced what action he will take.

Nashville Booms, Henderson States

Since announcement of the coming of the Dupont people to Nashville it is hard to keep real estate values within bounds in Nashville, stated D. E. Henderson who is here from his business at Nashville assisting officials of the Tennessee Valley bank with which institution Mr. Henderson was formerly connected as auditor.

Mr. Henderson expressed the belief that a boom was due here, such as was in progress at Nashville. He declared that the consolidation of the two cities would mean more and large developments locally.

Hartselle Officers Getting Tax List

Hartselle city officials, J. L. Rountree, city clerk, and John T. Kyle, chairman of the board of education, spent Thursday in the city getting the tax lists from tax assessor H. O. Troup at the county court house. Messrs. Rountree and Kyle will take the tax list of Mr. Troup as it applies to Hartselle citizens, and make it the basis of this year's tax budget for Hartselle. For a number of years Hartselle officials have used the county tax list as a basis for city taxation.

AIR BOMBERS SINK BATTLESHIPS

The effectiveness of bombing battleships from the air from a high altitude was shown off the Virginia capes when Martin bombing planes of the United States Army sunk the obsolete battleships New Jersey and Virginia. Planes effectively dropped 1,000-pound bombs from a height of 10,000 feet. This excellent photograph shows one of the bombs hitting the Virginia, sending her to the bottom.

HEARERS RETURN THANKS TO HEFLIN

Those who were compelled to leave the speaking at the courthouse Wednesday, when Senator Hefflin made the principal address before the distinguished visitor, concluded missed the best part, said T. C. Almon, who had charge of the meeting.

"Senator Hefflin's arraignment of the republicans for tampering with the federal reserve banks to the extent of tying part of the government money intended for the people at large in court, and in adding what Mr. Hefflin called a progressive interest rate greatly impressed his hearers. The Senator should feel very good over the endorsement given him and his services, as the entire audience expressed approval by standing to their feet at the close of the speech in token of their appreciation of Senator Hefflin's work in the Senate."

Plea Is Made For School Book Fund

Authorities at the County Health Unit stated this morning, that the parents of children who were financially unable to buy school books for their children had appealed for aid, and for second hand books.

It is requested that any children who have books they do not need leave them with their teachers. Mrs. Vera Austell stated that in case books or the funds to buy them were left at the county health unit, it would be seen to that books were supplied to school children in need of them.

OLD RESIDENT PAYS FRIENDS HERE VISIT

Edward Wise, or "Ed", as he was known when he worked in the Louisville and Nashville shops here over a score of years ago, and who was reared here, paid a short visit to old friends and has just left for his home at Vera Cruz, Mexico, where he is Manager of the Vera Cruz Terminal company. Mr. Wise stated that foreigners in Mexico if they hailed from the United States, were in high favor and that their property rights were fully protected under latest decisions of the Mexican courts.

The Mexicans now look to the United States people as their best friends and as their most potential friends, stated Mr. Wise. None but Americans to any great extent are now attempting to furnish capital for the development of Mexican natural resources, he added.

Mr. Wise spoke of his pleasure at noticing that only one city existed here. "There was nothing else to do," said Mr. Wise in speaking of the wisdom of consolidation. "If there had never been a division here, I am confident Decatur would have a population of 50,000 by this time. I have kept in touch with the situation here and while there have never been any great divisions between the people of the two sections of the community the outside public and the investing people did not see it that way. Where they saw two little towns side by side and they saw one look was enough and they went elsewhere." Mr. Wise stated that he expected to keep up with the city, by reading the Daily when he got settled at Vera Cruz.

Members Receive Fund From Lodge

Following court proceedings brought to determine who were the charter members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, which organization suspended here several years ago, the amounts of money due each of the charter members from the sale of property owned by the order has been distributed. About 15 local members qualified as charter members of the departed lodge.

PRICE OF COTTON TO SAVE FARMERS

Hope Held Growers To Net Profit Despite The Short Crop

PICKING SEASON IS WELL ADVANCED

Banks Feel Impetus Of Selling Movement By The Planters

Reports from the four banks here indicate the busy fall season has opened by W. B. Shackelford the cash-ready for the market. The general reports to the effect that cotton is opening rapidly this year throughout the cotton belt, are borne out here, banker state.

The cotton picking season is reaching its height in many sections of the Tennessee Valley, with the gins busy cleaning the fleecy staple and separating the seed from it.

The City National Bank, represented by W. B. Shackelford the cashier, and the Central National Bank represented by Stanley Wyatt, were in agreement with statements made by F. A. Bloodworth, president of the Morgan County National bank and by Clyde Hendrix, President of the Tennessee Valley bank.

Mr. Bloodworth stated today that with cotton bales bringing from $140 to $170 each, and with increasing amounts of the staple coming in he had noticed a decided upward trend in business.

It was pointed out by Mr. Bloodworth, that on the red land sections of the country in the Tennessee Valley, where they were far removed from wooded lands and from unused land the boll weevil had not appeared this year in such large numbers.

"As far as this section is concerned," said Mr. Bloodworth, "considering the advancing price of cotton, I see no reason for any great loss among the farmers. I know of some farmers who expect to do as well this year as they had planned. One man said that despite his boll weevil losses, he would make more money on his cotton this year than he had expected to make, if the price remained what it now is."

Mr. Bloodworth stated that he approved of the farmers looking ahead for next year, and providing cattle hogs and chickens, as it was not now and never had been a safe policy to depend on cotton alone.

The Morgan County National and the Central National banks anticipated the present movement for stocking the farms with more cows, when year or so ago they placed 15 full blooded registered Jersey calves on farms in Morgan County. Mr. Bloodworth stated today that he understood these calves were multiplying at a satisfactory rate.

Clyde Hendrix, stated that upon his return from a trip to such towns and cities as Courtland, Falkville, Florence, Gurley, Stevenson and eleven other such places in the Tennessee Valley that figures spoke louder than the talk about ruined cotton crops by the cotton pests. He said that despite the cotton crop being short, it was not a failure and that he was expecting the difference in price resulting from a decrease in the number of bales of cotton would tide the people of the Tennessee Valley over with prosperity to spare.

Mr. Hendrix showed that every one of his branch banks in the Valley 16 in number showed big increases in business over this time last year. He said the increase was over 50 per cent, and that the increase of the lowest of the ranch banks was over 20 per cent. "Since the post world war days, when every thing went down," declared Mr. Hendrix, "our prosperity has been gradual—it has been gradual that many do not realize its existence but prosperity is with us just the same." Mr. Hendrix cited increased industrial pay rolls, in addition to increased bank accounts to show the sure increase of prosperity. He also said the fact that more automobiles than ever were being sold and for cash in most instances, to his mind indicated prosperous times.

EXPERIENCE OF LOT DESCRIBED BY HAM

Evangelist Delivers A Striking Discourse On New Subject

MANY LESSONS ARE REVEALED

Many Persons Pledge Anew Allegiance To God's Cause

Following a spirited song service at the tabernacle last night which was rendered doubly impressive by a solo "Is He Yours" sung by Mrs. Hanson, Evangelist Ham announced that he would change his subject and instead of speaking on "Assurance of Salvation" as he had planned he spoke earnestly for an hour on the experience of Lot in the wicked city of Sodom, drawing many lessons from the experience of this old Biblical character.

Mr. Ham has been preaching for sometime and has presented a number of appeals and last night he announced that he was convinced that God's spirit could not work here until the professing Christians had removed the hindrances.

Pointing out the fact that Lot was God's man and a righteous man, he showed how his testimony in the wicked city of Sodom had counted for naught and that "He seemed to his sons-in-law as one that mocked" because he had failed to stand for his convictions but was swept along by the tide of wickedness in Sodom. His application to conditions existing locally was pointed and his arraignment of the compromising Christian was terrific. At the conclusion of the service a great host of professing Christians came to the front confessing that their life had been one of compromise but pledging anew their allegiance to the Master.

Mr. Ham said in part: "Crises do not make character; they only reveal it. The test of Lot revealed what was already in him. Just as the test of this meeting will reveal what character. And after this meeting closes you pastors will know more about your people than you ever could have found out had the meeting not been held."

Lot was not a positively wicked man. He didn't curse, or get drunk, or gamble, and in that respect was ahead of some of our church members. But he pitched his tent toward Sodom, and it wasn't long till he was clear in Sodom.

You can read in the Bible history of Lot's career, how he and his family and all Sodom were captured and carried away captives, and how God used Abraham, the separated man, to deliver him from his captives. I have been all these days trying to bring about separation here in Decatur, so that God can use the separated men to deliver the town from the captivity of sin.

The Sodomites feared if left to himself, this righteous old church member might get to stirring up trouble; so they said we will get him to run for judge, and that will shut his mouth. Of course when Lot became a candidate he couldn't afford to oppose any wicked kinds of business. He kept quiet, though his righteous soul was vexed duly.

Well, his wife and daughters got to be high flyers in the society of Sodom, and went all the gaits. This vexed Lot also, no doubt, but he was a henpecked mollycoddle who let his wife lead him around like her pig dog. His daughters married into the so-called best society and engaged in all the wickedness peculiar to that society.

Finally God looked down on the wicked cities of the plain and said "I've stood this thing just as long as I can. The nasty sins of those people stink in my nostrils. I'll send an angel down and burn them all up. But I will let my servant Abraham know about it first. I know Abraham, that he will command his house after him."

God loves a sure-enough man. He detests a weakling who hasn't force of character enough to rule his own household. He sent an awful judgment upon old Eli his high priest because his sons had made themselves vile and he restrained them not. He bitterly punished even His beloved servant David because he permitted too much indulgence to his children.

I always admired old Noah, though he preached 120 years without a convert, he did save his own household though surrounded entirely by wicked neighbors. He trusted God and became the only landowner in the world. Well, Abraham interceded for Sodom and obtained God's promise to spare the city if he could find ten righteous men in it, but it was no use.

WITNESSES ARE CALLED TO TESTIFY

OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS FOR GRIDIRON TEAM

The outlook for a winning football team here continues to improve as Coach Duycks succeeds in taking so many of the kinks out of his squad.

Yesterday afternoon he ran the squad through a short drill in attack and defense in line plays. The whole secret is how and when you hit, Coach Duycks tells his charges, demonstrates that fact and then expects his men to bear the advice in mind a moment later when he gives them an opportunity to expose their talent.

Football players with their eyes shut, or their brains hitting on one cylinder are "not with a darn," to use a favorite expression of the new athletic director. So, in running his men through their preliminary practice, Duycks is seeking a brainy team as well as a brawny one.

With the exception of Ezell, Holt Lewis and a pair of line-men, who may enter school, practically all of the available material now has seen one or more days of football practice. Holt may or may not return home from Detroit in time for this year's football program. Fans hope Lewis will be out in a day or two, while the other line-men will enter school if they can arrange their working hours to permit such action.

Quimby Sewell, a star of several seasons ago, has decided that his classroom work will still give him an opportunity to play and is working out daily. Sewell's weight, experience and pep will add much to the local line this year. Thomas, a line-man brother of Carl Thomas who was captain last year, is showing up well. Handy and Bowen, two of last season's squad, are putting fight into the practice sessions and a big season is predicted for both.

MISSING BICYCLES BEING RETURNED

Disregarding a certain one of the 10 commandments, according to assistant Chief of Police of Decatur, Joseph D. Bell, an overgrown negro youth named John Edward Wilkerson said take some 12 or 13 local bicycles to people are making deliveries of bicycle to time in the last few weeks, and sell said bicycles to unsuspecting persons. Now the Courtland cops here, because the law will not allow purchasers of stolen property to have the enjoyment thereof.

Wilkerson made a self-incriminating confession when encouraged to do so by Mr. Bell and is now about to be put to hard labor to expiate his crime. The sadness of Wilkerson's state of mind, is reflected as a joyful one for the local boys, and others are now about to get back their long lost bicycles. These new found bicycles were the first property for years which want ads in the Daily failed to return to their owners.

Mrs. J. O. Drake In An Auto Accident

The following account of a near fatal accident to Mrs. J. O. Drake who was reared here and is well known to many people in Morgan County, was taken from a recent issue of the Montgomery Advertiser.

Mr. and Mrs. Drake now live in Montgomery.

Following a head-on collision Monday afternoon between the Chevrolet touring car in which she was driving with her baby daughter and a city bound Capitol Heights street car, Mrs. J. O. Drake, 323 Monroe avenue, was carried to St. Margaret's Hospital to be treated for several flesh wounds and lacerations about the face. The child was also hurt and was left at the hospital with her mother.

The crash occurred on Madison avenue just beyond Cramton Bowl from the city. The automobile, it was stated, is an absolute wreck. The physician who attended Mrs. Drake's injuries said that she would recover. A companion of Mrs. Drake and her daughter escaped without serious injury.

Solicitor Returned From Conference Unchanged

REPORTERS SUMMONED

File Of Newspapers With Interviews Also Sought

(By Associated Press.)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20—L. A. Boyd, head of the state board of convict supervisors, will go to Birmingham tomorrow to appear before the Jefferson County grand jury. It was learned here today, that the grand jury before that body was in session with the Banner mine flogging.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20—Resolution concerning the state lease system and concerning Governor Brandon's proposed plan to order the Banner mine flogging, was adopted by the house today. It was introduced by Representative Boyd, of the 10th district, and was read by Representative Long of Bedford.

It pledged the support of the state moral and financial in the holding of the dignity of the governor's office and respect for the law.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 20—Solicitor James G. Davis will proceed with his investigation of conditions at Banner mines in spite of Governor William W. Brandon's letter of yesterday, in which the executive said an inquiry would not be held as an authority governing officials ruled finally with the governor of the state.

Mr. Davis left Montgomery at 4 a. m. this morning after consulting with state officials and upon arrival here, went directly to his office to prepare for the opening of the grand jury at 9 o'clock.

The Solicitor began hearing motions for newspaper men who interviewed convicts at the mine, following an outbreak on September 18. He said the warden at the mine and other officials would be called.

Mr. Davis also called for 175 of newspapers containing first and subsequent accounts of the mutiny.

In newspaper accounts of the trouble at the mine convicts were quoted as saying that tasks were impossible, food was poor and men were forced to work when ill. Convicts also were quoted as saying that they were whipped.

Governor Brandon last night wrote Solicitor Davis that he must not usurp the governor's prerogatives in an investigation such as the Solicitor proposed.

Mr. Davis statement this morning was understood to mean that he intended to proceed in the face of the governor's warning that he must call off the inquiry. The Solicitor's action it was noted, is based upon sections of the criminal code which read as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the president and other inspectors to report violations of the law in regard to convicts that may come to their knowledge to the proper solicitor, and all indictments of same shall be tried in the circuit court of the county where the offense is committed."

"Solicitors have authority and it is their duty in term time, or in vacation to issue a subpoena for any person that they may decide to appear before the grand jury to give evidence of any violation of the law."

Legal observers were watching developments in the controversy between the governor and solicitor, which they said had apparently resolved into a contest between the executive and judiciary branches of the government.

Solicitor Davis later announced that he intended to summon President L. A. Boyd, of the board of convict supervisors, who investigated the Banner mine strike and made formal report to the governor. In his report Mr. Boyd said he "assumed full responsibility" for the whipping of the alleged leaders in the mutiny.

Among those subpoenaed were two camp physicians, the warden, the

A NEW DAILY EXCHANGE FROM THE CITY OF FLORENCE.

The second issue of the Florence Times as a daily newspaper has reached the exchange table of The Daily. The new paper appears well and the reading matter it contains is first class.

With the coming of such developments as are confidently expected at Florence, a large field of usefulness is open to the Daily Times.

The men whose names appear at the masthead of the Times are a sufficient guarantee to their readers that the new paper will be a clean publication and in every way worthy of the highest confidence.

The Decatur Daily extends congratulations to Messrs. Camper and Sparks and wishes them a large opportunity for service and genuine success.

FOR THAT FULFILLED DUTY.

The best and most advanced step in the history of our city was the consolidation measure brought about by legislative action and to the Honorables Forman, Hutson and Patterson and associates this community will always owe a debt of gratitude. These men have unselfishly borne the brunt of the merger fight and in the time to come will be hailed as the patriots of our times in bringing about a condition that others have sought to establish for the past thirty years.

Out of it will come harmony, though a comparative few will, for the time, attempt to thwart the will of the majority. Our people mean to go forward with unity of purpose "consolidation," if you please, otherwise two small towns would maintain the struggle forever, contesting every inch of ground for supremacy. By the act of our legislators there is every reason to believe that one grand imperial city is on the way. Every soul within this section pulling with hearty accord will bring the realization of our fondest dream.

The Daily belongs to the people, but its policies belong to the publishers, and its purpose is to serve all, giving to the public both sides of the question that the worth of each may be weighed in the public balance. It is heartily in favor of the movement, believing it to be for the best for the whole people. The men who have stood steadfast and true it commends for what they have and are doing and believes that they have the support of the majority of the citizens effected by the merging of the once "Twin Cities."

The merger bills were drawn by able attorneys and according to the decision handed down by the Circuit Court of Morgan County have been proven constitutional. They were drawn to meet unusual conditions and with the view of having the approval of the largest number of the people involved. Unquestionably they have been and are endorsed by the people at large, though some features are not acceptable to all. Still they bring our cities into one, and this and this only is what The Daily has contended for through many years of service and endeavor. Matters incidental will be ironed out in a way most satisfactory to those concerned. All honor to the men who have brought about consolidation and it only remains for the supreme court to decide that they have done their full duty. Consolidation we believe is here to stay and our people have to thank these men who have given their time and talents for the common good.

Here we have had our shadows and our sunshine. We go to Dayton, Tenn. to be near our daughter and her husband. We hope to keep our old friends here, and to make new ones. We must have the Decatur Daily, for it will make our hearts glad every one of the 365 days of the year."

Red Cross Roll Call Is Planned Soon

Morgan County Red Cross authorities will soon put on the annual roll call campaign, when not less than 1000 members are expected to join the acting through John D. Wyker, its organization. The Red Cross in this county recently contributed $500 to the relief fund of the American Red Cross to assist earthquake sufferers in Tokio and Yokohama.

William Curry In Ship Collision

William Curry, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Curry, and a former local resident is a member of the crew of the which crew of the U. S. S. Arkansas, the battleship which collided with the destroyer McFarland, it became known here today when Mr. Curry came to Decatur on business.

"Billie" Curry, as he was affectionately known by a host of friends here is a fireman on the Arkansas and is studying to become a mechanical engineer.

Experience Of Lot Described By Ham

Then the angels went to warn Lot, and the wicked men of the city tried to take the angels out of Lot's house supposing them to be men, to practice Sodomy upon them; but the angels struck the mob blind and told Lot to get his family and hasten away before the fire began to rain upon the devoted town.

So Lot went to the homes of his sons-in-law and begged them to hasten away for their lives. "And he seemed to his sons-in-law as one that mocked." They had no confidence in him, so inconsistent with his religious profession had his worldly life been. And thus he lost his daughters and their families.

Lot was ruined and he was so dead spiritually that he didn't know it, just like a lot of you. The devil can't trust you; because he knows you would desert him if he became unpopular. God can't trust you because He has found that He can't depend on you when the pinch comes. Your family is going to hell, and you quibble whether you can afford to join in the meeting, to save them, because you don't have any strong language. Well, I can't commence to operate on you yet. I've just been building the patient up and getting you ready for the operation. I am going to use the knife when I think you will not die of the shock.

Lot and his wife and two rescued daughters began to fear that they would have to go back to life in a tent, on a ranch like their old-fashioned uncle Abraham; so they prayed the angels that were lending them out of the doomed city to let them go down in Zeor, another city of the plain.

The angels said: "Your prayer is answered; but don't you look back." Got all affection for the wicked world you are leaving behind out of your heart and mind. Lot's wife couldn't do this; so she perished.

The Secret of Better Biscuit Making

by Sweet Rose

IF I tell you that I've found the best way in the world to make hot biscuits you'll be interested, won't you? My way is so simple and easy that I want to tell you about it.

Just try working two tablespoons of lard or butter into a quart of Sweet Rose Self-Rising Flour with your finger tips. Then stir in a cup of cold milk or water.

Roll out on a lightly floured board, cut and bake in a quick oven ten to fifteen minutes. But see that your dough is soft before putting in the oven.

Be sure that your oven is very hot, and above all, do not add sour milk, soda or baking powder to your mixture. That's the good thing about Sweet Rose Self-Rising Flour, the leavening is already mixed just right.

If you'll just follow this simple advice you will find that with hardly any time or trouble you can make the tastiest, most delicious biscuits that ever melted in your mouth. Remember, you can't buy better flour than Sweet Rose. It may cost a bit more per sack but its quality always tells in your baking.

city warden and three Birmingham reporters, who were assigned to cover the strike story.
Tom Wiley and Fred Cook, white convicts, who discussed the strike with reporters at the mines will also be subpoenaed, Mr. Davis announced.
Members of the state anti-lease committee, who carried the fight to abolish convict leasing in Alabama before the legislature were present to appear before the grand jury. White workers, who had visited mines in the district, were said also to have been on hand.
Solicitor Davis, in a statement, declared: "I am entirely within my legal bounds in conducting this investigation and I expect to go to the bottom of this outrageous occurrence and place the responsibility."
While the investigation proceeds behind closed doors of the grand jury room, it was indicated by attaches of the Solicitor's office that the inquiry was in connection with condition which are alleged to have led to the mutiny of convicts and the subsequent punishment inflicted upon those who had been leaders of the revolt.
At the Solicitor's office it was announced that "the fullest publicity would be given the investigation in order that the people of the state may know exactly what goes on behind the scenes."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20—Governor Brandon remained silent this morning despite the action of Solicitor James G. A Better Clay

White, refined—amazingly effective
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I owe my youthful beauty largely to a super-clay, perfected by French experts.

The first clays I used were crude and muddy, as many clays are still, but they multiplied my beauty. The clay I now use has been perfected by 20 years of scientific study. It is white, refined and dainty. The results it brings are amazing, compared with old-type clays.

Now, after 40 years as a stage star, I still look a girl of 19.

Every Woman's Duty.
The use of clay is every woman's duty to herself. No girl can look her best without it, no woman can keep her youth.

Look about you. Note the wonderful complexions due to clay. The mothers who look like daughters.

Clay purges the skin of all the clogs it—the cause of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles. Many women, with application, seem to drop ten years. No woman can afford to miss the benefits of clay.

Manifold Effects.
But my new-type clay does more than others. I call it my Youth Clay. And I have arranged for all who wish may use it.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay is now supplied by druggists and toilet counters. For 50c, and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. Beauty Book comes with each.

I can do no woman a greater kindness than to urge her to use this clay. Go try it. See the new complexion it brings. If lines have come, let them disappear. You will ever thank me for telling you about it. Wallace Hopper. Business Manager, Waukesha, Wis.

Studebaker Light-Six
Touring Car
$995

The Price of This Car Is Misleading

Some buyers take it for granted that cars which sell at about the same prices are equal in value. This is distinctly not the case. To buy on this basis would be an injustice to yourself.

You can pay several hundred dollars more than the Light-Six price and get a car that represents no greater, if as great, intrinsic value as the Studebaker Light-Six.

Or you can pay about the same price as the Light-Six, or less, and get a car that is high-priced when compared with the Light-Six because it does not represent as much for the money invested.

And in the Light-Six you enjoy all the advantages of smooth, flexible, dependable, six-cylinder performance.

You get a beautiful, substantial, well-built, roomy and comfortable car.

The practical absence of vibration in the Light-Six is a notable achievement. It is due largely to the fact that the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting rods are machined on all surfaces. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars within hundreds of dollars of the Light-Six price.

Stop in and see the 1924 Model Light-Six.

Test it for yourself—drive it and make your comparisons. Driving is believing.

After seventy-one years of service the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

The Disquieting Discovery Made.

THE east end of Long Island? Mrs. Marks, my queer neighbor of the rear apartment, repeated my words slowly, while all color, save that which came from her rouge pot, drained from her face. "What do you mean? Is there where you went? Do you live out there? Where?"

The queries were quick and tempestuous. I was careful to make my tone casual in reply, for I did not wish her to realize that I suspected her connection with the family across the road from my farmhouse home in whose house the whiskey still had been found.

"Between Bridgehampton and Sag Harbor on the road called 'Twisting Path,' I returned, 'but I was only passing when I spoke of relatives of yours. The photograph I ran across was much like you, however, although I can see now that you have different features. Quick, isn't it, what odd resemblances there are in this world!'

I pretended to busy myself with my tea as I spoke, so that I could avoid looking at her. That she was making a game effort to pull herself together, I knew, not only from the silence which followed my question, but from the forced, even strained intonation which finally couched her answer.

"Yes, there are, I'm sure I'd like to see some of the folks a bit like me. But I never was out beyond Rockaway on Long Island in my life."

I made the mental comment that she might well be speaking the literal truth, even though I was convinced that she indeed was the original of the photograph I had seen. But I gave voice only to the most banal reply:

"You ought to go sometime. It is wonderfully beautiful out there."

"Come Again Soon."

"I've heard so," she replied, and then I turned the conversation into the safe channel of the neighboring shops, until I could take my leave without awkwardness.

"I wish you'd come again soon," she said wistfully, as I left. "I'll tell you the best time, between half-past four and half-past five. My petey, he gets up and goes out at half-past four, and I see your sweetie comes home every day about half-past five, so that's a good time."

"It does appear so," I returned non-committally, and then I returned to my own room, a bit bewildered at the glimpse I had behind the scenes of my neighbor's life, and fully resolved to keep away from her vicinity as much as possible.

I told myself that this resolve had its inception in Dicky's vehemently expressed disapproval of both the masculine and the feminine Marks. But when with a few small sticks I had managed a small fire in the grate which was the one redeeming feature of the apartment to me, and had settled down in an armchair in front of it, I faced the humiliating fact that I did not wish Dicky to meet this girl, Mollie, whose fresh young beauty was so unusual, and of a type which I knew was most appealing to an artist husband.

That Mollie was an intimate of the Marks household was patent. Sooner or later, in the common hallway or on the stairs, Dicky in all probability would encounter her. Instinctively, I dreaded that meeting, though I fully realized the meanness as well as the absurdity of the fear.

In an Idle Moment.

It was not a happy time which I spent before my poor apology for a fire, waiting for Dicky's return from the banquet to which he had so narrowly escaped going. I suppose most wives have had similar unpleasant sessions with their souls, with the twin demons of loneliness and uneasiness helping to make things intolerable. My own mental experiment was aggravated by the remembrance of Dicky's startled look when I had made a jesting reference to the absence of feminine guests at the banquet.

Was it possible that—?

With a mental jerk, I forced my mind away from Dicky and all problems in any way connected with him. I knew the only sure method of keeping my thoughts away from him, and promptly looked around the apartment for something interesting to read.

A book of which I had heard much, lay on the table, evidently where Dicky had laid it upon his return home. That the hero's name was Benjamin, I had gleaned from the reviews, as well as the fact that marriage vows in his theory of life were fickle bonds made only to be broken.

With mild curiosity I took up the book, and returned to my armchair, but as I opened it, I sat bolt upright in my chair. For on the flyleaf of what was plainly a presentation copy, was the inscription:

"To 'Benjamin' with the author's gratitude."

BELLE—What big hatpins! Oh, I get the idea now! Each is covered with a striking color which matches a special handkerchief! Of course the heads of the pins must be large to show the colors effectively. But why not choose colors to match your slippers—then you'll be matched from top to toe!

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

How Friend Lydia Saved George Washington's Army.

SECOND STREET in Philadelphia is but two blocks removed from the Delaware River and is now one of the busiest thoroughfares.

But in 1777 this thoroughfare was a quiet residential street lined with quaint red brick houses like that of William Penn, who had been the founder of the colony of which Philadelphia was the metropolis.

In one of these houses lived a quiet little Quaker lady, known as "Friend Lydia." Her husband, who appeared peaceful and quiet to those who saw her going sedately to market or dispassionately knitting by the window, in her heart was anything but peace.

The reason was that across the street from her house were the headquarters of General Howe, the British General, then in possession of the city.

On several occasions the British staff officers had used one of Lydia's rooms as a meeting place for secret conferences and her blood boiled at the thought.

On a snowy day in December of that year, a message was brought to Lydia that her room was cleared outside the city at Whittemarsh.

Lydia slipped down stairs and made her plans for the following day.

She did not dare to take her husband into her confidence, for if her scheme miscarried he would be implicated and she could not bear to bring trouble to him.

What she must do, she must do alone, she told herself. After breakfast she resolutely told her husband that she was going to Frankfurt to the mill for some flour.

Now Frankfurt was a long distance from her home—five miles. But the brave little Quaker took her bag and trudged through the snow toward the American camp.

Arriving at Frankfurt, Lydia left her bag with the miller and hurried on toward the American headquarters. As she was wearily making her way through the heavy snow, some horsemen approached her.

Her heart sank. But when she saw the blue uniforms her spirits rose and she stiffened the leader.

Quickly and in very few words she told her story. The officer grasped her hand and hurried back to his headquarters.

Quickly She Told Her Story to the Officer.

Lydia returned to the miller and when she arrived at her home with her heavy bag of flour, she all but fainted with fatigue.

Several days later one of the officers who had met in her house came swaggering into her parlor and demanded to know if anyone had been up on the night of the memorable meeting in her upper chamber.

Lydia demurely lowered her head as she replied that the entire household had gone to bed shortly after eight.

As the officer left her door she heard him say:

"I am altogether at a loss to conceive who could have given the information to Washington of our plans. When we arrived here, we found his cannon pointed at us and trained to blow us to Kingdom come and all of his troops ready for action. We had to march back like a parcel of fools."

Lydia bade him good-day and told her neighbors to give thanks for her privilege of being an instrument in saving her country's army.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

What Some Women Do to Make Big Houses Pay.

SOMETIMES serious financial problems face those who own old-fashioned homes which for sentimental reasons they do not want to sell, or which for good and sufficient reasons are not salable. It costs money to pay taxes and keep up these homes.

Persons owning homes on high ways are often advised—and many are following the good advice—to turn their homes into tear-rooms during the summer and autumn, and in the winter open their places over for motorists who wish to give dinners in exclusive places. This is an excellent way to make one's home add to the family income.

A mother and daughter left with a large house and garden, but with little cash, decided to make a home for a dozen youngsters whose fathers and mothers were obliged to travel part of each year. The children received lessons daily in kindergarten and primary classes. Filigree, dancing, music, games and so on were taught. Good board and general care were supplied at fair prices. The first season, four children came. The next season found the house full, while at the opening of the third season there was a waiting list.

Another ambitious woman, left a widow with a big home on the beaten pathway, has turned it into a convalescent home. Three of the most fashionable doctors in a nearby city send their patients to her for rest, quiet, good food and pure air. She employs three resident nurses, a good chef, two chambermaids, two waitresses, a chauffeur, gardener and an errand boy, while she herself acts as bookkeeper and general manager. Her plan is most successful, pays her well, and her house has won fame under these new conditions.

Another woman, owner of a big, old-fashioned house and a garden of large proportions, has done over the roomy lower floor to resemble a clubhouse. Outdoors, she has had four wonderful tennis courts built. As she is near a busy city, she has made the place both exclusive and popular. She serves afternoon teas, cold luncheons and special suppers. Her rooms are in demand for parties in winter and summer. Her tennis lawn is frozen over for skating in the winter, and are lighted for skating at night. In summer they are illuminated for night tennis, a novelty that attracts many players. She has good help, a big staff that can meet, train if ordered, and lockers for articles left with her during the season. She has not only cleared her home of debt, but she has improved the property as well, and is making a good income.

Still another woman has turned her home into a dainty shop where all the cakes, ice creams and fancy dishes are made for a nearby summer hotel. This plan solves a problem for this hotel, and gives them an advertising feature, home-made delicacies. Needless to say, this woman is making a good living, not only from the hotel, but from orders from guests after they leave the hotel, for their holiday tables. She has a steady sale for her candies the year around.

One more instance is that of two maiden sisters who have turned their big home into a center for weaving and handcraft articles, including rugs, silk scarfs, materials for dresses and so on. Their stuffs are sold at big prices and certain lines are on sale at exclusive shops where they may always be purchased.

The main floor was an immense parlor or ballroom. Extra windows were set up. One sister who is an artist, creates the exclusive designs, while the other sister is business manager. There is a big demand for this stuff and the prices they obtain make their work worth-while.

What one has done, another may do.

Madame has been very busy lately making evening gowns for her clients who have come back to the city after summering in the country.

Miss Brown, one of her smart young clients, came in to-day.

"I'm in a most terrific rush for a party frock," she announced, with her usual use of superlatives.

"So much of a hurry—as that?" Madame asked.

"The party is tomorrow night. My best friend is announcing her engagement—the result of a Summer affair," she informed Madame.

"Summer affairs don't usually end so seriously," Madame answered with a smile. "But my dear young lady, that's quite a rush order," she added.

"You simply can't fail me now, Madame," Miss Brown said, in her most coaxing tone. "The only thing more important would be my own announcement party."

"As long as you've promised to let me make your trousseau when the grand event occurs, I suppose I must humor you this time," Madame laughed. "What do you want?"

"I want more than anything to leave that to you," Miss Brown answered.

"Fair enough," Madame replied, well pleased on the instant.

"Miss Brown knows how to get the best results from Madame," I whispered to Pam. "She knows that Madame likes nothing more than to be left entirely alone when designing a frock."

"And Miss Brown is very wise," Pam answered. "Miss Brown will get a lovely frock, mark my words."

Pam was right, for by afternoon the seamstresses were at work on a lovely gown of corn-colored chiffon.

"This must be all together by five o'clock," Madame ordered. "A very important client is coming in to have a fitting."

I've never known such record time, but at five Miss Brown came, and she fairly went into ecstasies over the gown.

"It's a drier than anything I could have dreamed," she said when

YOUR HEALTH

Why Every School Child Should Be Taught to Swim

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York,

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FEW days ago a young woman who is an expert swimmer and diver wrote me an interesting letter about the health-giving properties of swimming.

I want to quote a little from this letter, because what she says should be given serious consideration. Here is the first statement:

"I feel that every man and woman should know how to swim. No matter how far they may live from a body of water, there will come a time when they will either wish they knew how to swim in order to have a little fun, or will have to know how to swim to save their own lives. And they should not be denied the means by which they can preserve themselves against an untimely end."

There is good sense in this. If you ever saw a drowning you will appreciate these words.

Next, my correspondent discusses the health aspect of swimming which she says, "has developed delicate children into the healthiest specimens of manhood and womanhood. It has straightened round shoulders. It has taught people to fill their lungs with air. It has given strength to the arms and legs. It has sent blood to the brain, making many an otherwise dull mind an intelligent one. Swimming has given zest to life."

That is a pretty enthusiastic account of the possibilities of swimming, isn't it? After all, however, this splendid exercise will do about everything claimed for it.

Having emphasized these important things about swimming, my correspondent makes this plea:

"Therefore, because of its health-giving properties, its broadening possibilities and its undeniable part in saving lives, swimming should be taught in every grammar school, high school and college in the United States."

This lady says she keeps up her swimming for more than sport's sake. She is doing her best to have swimming included in the curriculum of every school in the country. I sincerely hope she will succeed. I want to help in this worthy crusade.

It is just as important to teach the ways to live as it is to teach the rules of grammar. I have criticized the lack of attention to hygiene in the bodies of the pupils. Hygiene should be taught and the ways to apply it should be demonstrated in every school.

The modern schools are equipped with indoor swimming pools. This is well, and every community financially able to install such equipment should do so. But if funds are not available for such a purpose, there are few places without a small stream which can be dammed and made into a splendid swimming pond.

In arranging for swimming plans must be made to have the water clean and kept clean. There is nothing more dangerous to health than an insanitary pool. All the good derived from the physical exercise of swimming will be counteracted by the infections which will result from contaminated water. But this is a danger which is easily avoided.

Swimming should be a year-round exercise. It can be when indoor pools are available. Let us help to create a sentiment for the body-cleansing, muscle-training, brain-stimulating art of swimming.

"It's a drier than anything I could have dreamed," she said when

Flowers of Contrasting Colors Trim This Corn-Colored Gown for Evening Wear.

The frock was essentially simple. The plain bodice merged into two tiers of chiffon, each one finished in points, and that was all.

"There is to be only one trimming note," Madame announced. "It's something I bought on my last trip abroad."

"She went out a minute and brought back a perfect spray of pastel flowers."

"Every one hand-made, of course," she said, as she held it up to Miss Brown's waist.

Miss Brown immediately went into ecstasies again.

"You must wear stockings to match, amber satin slippers and amber beads," Madame told her.

And as I write this diary, I'm wondering if I'll ever be as wonderful a designer as Madame.
